

Author: cruz

How "Health Education" Is the New Seal for Sexually Explicit Material in Schools: Extensive Article-Download PDF

509
SHARES

ShareTweet

How “Health Education” Is the New Seal for Sexually Explicit Material in Schools

If you have noticed, since the beginning of the Obama’s second term presidency, explicit contents mysteriously found their way into school libraries from first grade to the last. Books containing this type of material mostly have been found where only children had access to. Parents had no knowledge as children might or might not speak about them but when they did, their parents were furious. What happened next became a trend and this trend is our focus:

- 1- Books are placed in places where very young children had access to.
- 2- Parents who came to the knowledge, furiously called out the school board.
- 3- After very harsh fights between the school board and parents, books were usually removed.
- 4- The same books appeared in another school in another county after a short time.
- 5- And the story repeats month after month and year after year.

The incidents may look like isolated incidents but after a deeper look, the trend is systematically the same, therefore institutional. But what institution is behind this? None officially. However the cycle repeats itself over and over again.

It is worth nothing to say that the timing is crucial. The Obama administration steps were aligned with these type of material in schools as the administration tried to legalize twelve perversions when Tom Delay, then House Majority Leader notified the Newsmax Channel.

In an interview for “The Steve Malzberg Show” on Newsmax TV, Tom DeLay said:

“We’ve ... found a secret memo coming out of the Justice Department. They’re now going to go after 12 new perversions. Things like bestiality, polygamy, having sex with little boys and making that legal,”

“Not only that, but they have a whole list of strategies to go after the churches, the pastors and any businesses that try to assert their religious liberty. This is coming, and it’s coming like a tidal wave.”

When shocked Steve Malzberg stopped Tom DeLay to repeat what Delay said, Tom DeLay responded:

“That’s correct, that’s correct. They’re coming down with 12 new perversions ... LGBT [short for lesbian, gay, bisexual, and transgender] is only the beginning. They’re going to start expanding it to the other perversions.”

Read the full article here.

Former U.S. House Majority Leader Tom DeLay: The Obama DOJ Drafted A Memo To Legalize 12 "Perversions," Including Bestiality, Pedophilia & Polygamy

Pedophiles Claim Sexual Orientation Rights Because Obama Signed The "Pedophile Protection Act"

How can a repetitive cycle of actions be a coincidence? Is it possible to have an accident with the same brand of car every day? Can you hit a black Honda today, a red Honda tomorrow, and a white Honda the next day at the same time, repeating the action for the next year? Honda may run out of colors, but the explicit material won't. With many variations, different authors, and different names, the same material appears over and over again.

This is a conducted project. It is carefully planned and designed in a long-time run and various steps and the media's role has always been to minimizing the incident and make it look like an isolated case. At the end of the page, I have presented news article reacting to parent's outrage to see how they label the dissent as "book banning", rightwing religious propaganda" and "New Censorship."

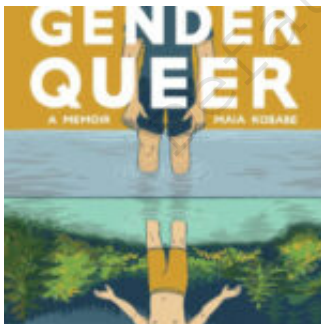

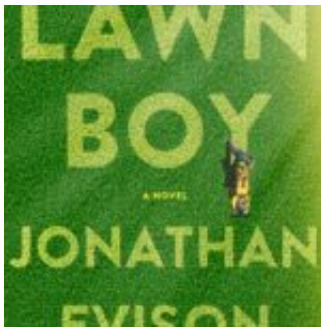

Two of the books in question are Lawn Boy and Gender Queer, both found in elementary schools and up. Lawn Boy explicitly explains how a 10-year old boy has sex with an adult man and how it was good. Gender Queer instead has images of people on top of each other. The argument of the defenders of these books is that children need to explore their gender identity and sexuality and any argument against this content means banning free speech as parents act emotionally and are offensive to minorities who might have other sexual tendencies that the stereotypical sexual normalcy. Very explicit content are now called "Health Education" and that's how they camouflage it.

The LGBT agenda has just one goal: To criminalizing the morality of mankind and traditional family values to the end result of legalizing pedophilia, abolishing two sexes, and move toward transhumanism which I wrote about it in my old articles. The main target is America. Children with wrong education will not be aware and therefore safe from of irresponsible behavior. A transformed America will not be a super power anymore. Weak men can't fight, demoralized women bear no good children. Leave a transgender in a battle field with no make-up, no hormones, no publicity and see how dehumanized their appearance would become. If humanity returns to be primitive, who can survive? The strong. Feminist women equally will not survive a war. Their aggression doesn't make them strong. Women are not wired for war. They are vulnerable to rape. Whatever they do, whatever age they are, this vulnerability stays with them. You cannot fill the vulnerable part with cement. You cannot hide it under the sand or leave it in the military base and run. Does that make sense? It is called nature.

My intention for gathering the material here is to prove this is not happening in just one place. Use this article if you find yourself in a situation. It is all over the place. I bet the same thing is happening in Canada, Australia and Europe but I haven't look into it. When you see a trend, you can make sure there is no "conspiracy" and when there is no conspiracy, then the agenda behind it is also no conspiracy. Putin and Urban didn't want this agenda in their countries and now they are the worst enemy. It is so sad that mothers, fathers and children in Ukraine and Russia are both hurt because of an agenda. However, those who are behind this, have never pushed it in Islamic countries. Why? Because they are only making the west vulnerable.

The first case shown in the video, is the most recent one where 11-year-old boy reads pornographic material found by the entry door of the library.

Cumberland County, Maine

Tarrant County, Texas

Carmel, Indiana

Wake County, North Carolina

Forsyth County, Georgia

Spotsylvania County, Virginia

Louisville, Kentucky

Anchorage, Alaska

Nashville, Tennessee

Clark County, Las Vegas

Clay County, Florida

Loudoun County, Virginia

Sexually Explicit Books Were Put in These Virginia Classrooms. Parents Want Answers.

Parents in Loudoun County, Virginia, are outraged after discovering that thousands of books were placed in classrooms across the school district this year as part of a new “Diverse Classroom Library Initiative.”

While most of these books focus on introducing kids to different cultures and ethnicities, parents began to discover that an alarming number of the books focused on “sexual diversity,” contain sexually explicit language, including “frequent descriptions of underage drinking, fondling, masturbation, orgasms, oral sex, sexual intercourse, sexual abuse, statutory rape, incest, and rape.”

Even books at the kindergarten level promote LGBT ideology through books such as “My Princess Boy,” designed to introduce 5- and 6-year-olds to the harmful idea that they can change their gender. Another book, “Heather Has Two Mommies,” denies the need for fathers and ignores the loss a child might feel over having no relationship with his or her father.

Other titles include, but are certainly not limited to: “Prince and Knight” (second grade), “Beyond Magenta: Transgender Teens Speak Out,” “Some Girls Bind,” “Weird Girl and What’s His Name” (positively featuring statutory rape between a young boy and his boss, and a relationship between a girl and her teacher), and “Being Jazz: My Life as a Transgender Teen.”

The content in many of these books is graphic, and the language so obscene that when parents read passages aloud at a recent school board meeting, board member Joy Maloney, who supported the books, protested that the meeting wasn’t an “appropriate setting” to hear such language.

Parents and even the board chairman were quick to point out the irony in this sentiment.

Not only is the content of these books grossly inappropriate, but equally as bad is the secretive and unaccountable manner in which the “diverse books initiative” was implemented—as well as the clear intent to cut parents out of their own children’s formation when it comes to topics of sexuality.

Unfortunately, this program is unlike the typical “LGBT book displays” that other parents encounter at their local libraries, in which the agenda is clearly marked and accessible to parents for review.

Instead, large collections of these books were placed by administrators into schools county-wide to supplement teachers’ classroom libraries. Not only do parents have no idea what their children happen to pick up and read during a school day, but kids aren’t even allowed to bring books out of the classroom.

Leander County, Texas

Enraged parents demand to know why 'pedophilia' is being made available in Texas schools to 4th graders

September 16, 2021 | Terresa Monroe-Hamilton |

A video has gone viral showing a momma bear in Texas tearing into a local school board over sexually explicit content in schools that she calls "depraved" and then raged over pedophilia being made available to fourth-graders.

"Who normalizes sex acts between fourth graders?" she ferociously railed at the board. "I'll tell you who: pedophiles."

The mother stated that she had asked her children to show her the books they brought home from school and she was shocked by their content. She then proceeded to read some of the pages out loud from a book entitled "Lawn Boy," by Jonathan Evison during the meeting so they could get a whiff of the depravity it contains.

Warning for graphic and disturbing content**

"What if I told you I touched another guy's dk? What if I told you I sucked it? I was 10 years old, but it's true. I put Doug Goebbel's dk in my mouth. I was in fourth grade. It was no big deal, he sucked mine too. And you know what? It wasn't terrible," the mother read to the board.

WARNING: Extremely graphic content.

(Video Credit: Libs of Tik Tok)

Other parents at the meeting held up large photos of the school board members with captions that read "Vote Out" and "Resign."

"He talked about old times at the church, but never mentioned our penises or the fact that he never said ten words to me after our little foray in the bushes. Not a single reference to holding or tugging or sucking dks. All I could think about while he was chatting me up was his little salamander between my fourth-grade fingers, rapidly engorging with blood," she read aloud from another chapter in the book.

Then the beyond-angry mother accused the school of sexual harassment, "What sort of educational environment do you think the sexually graphic book selections create for my children, or for any child for that matter?"

She added, "In addition, I'll share with you the exceptional quality of the vocabulary. I stopped counting on page 66 after '44 'fks' and 41 'sts.'"

Parents at the meeting were harassed and security tried to quiet and contain them as well. They were having none of it.

The Leander Independent School District claims the book is not taught in any classroom and is only available to some students through the campus library according to ABC4 News. This echoes similar claims in Ohio where a mayor demanded that five members of a local school board resign over providing sexually explicit materials in classrooms.

Leander Police noted that two parents have filed reports about obscenities in the book and the department is now investigating it. The results of their investigation will be turned over to the Criminal Investigation Department or a prosecutor.

On Monday, a third community member also announced that they were filing a complaint about the book.

In a statement, the school district said, "The book 'Lawn Boy' by Jonathan Evison is not a part of our district curriculum. We have not received any formally filed complaints through the process outlined in the Board policy."

In March, parents assailed the Leander Independent School District over unacceptable teaching materials according to the Daily Wire, "Students as young as 13 in Leander Independent School District, Austin, TX, have been exposed to graphic sexual content as part of their course work, including graphic verbal depictions of gang rape and other sexual acts."

Students told their parents about what they were being taught which started a firestorm. Parents immediately went to the school over the issue and were harassed for it. They were allegedly called "religious zealots," "bigots," "racists," and "dks."

“Some of the people speaking out have received anonymous cardboard penises in the mail with anti-Christian messages calling them names such as ct,” one parent reported. “Others have received dead animals on their porches.”

Rage is building among parents over the filth being forced on their children in schools across the nation.

.....

Fairfax County, Virginia

Graphic Warning: Horrified Crowd Shouts as Parent Shows School's Pedophilia Comics at Board Meeting

By Michael Austin September 24, 2021 at 1:54pm

It appears Fairfax County Public Schools in Virginia has been disseminating pedophilic pornography to its students. As much was revealed by author and former journalist for The Wall Street Journal Asra Nomani, who attended a local Fairfax County School Board meeting Thursday night. During the meeting, Fairfax High School mother Stacy Langton brought two books up to the podium, along with printouts of some of their pages. The books were “Lawn Boy” by Jonathan Evison and “Gender Queer” by Maia Kobabe.

Langton said she found the books in the high school library, the Robinson Secondary School library and at others across the county.

“The books were available, and we checked them out,” the mother said, according to Nomani’s report.

Given the incredibly pornographic nature of the images (comic-style pictures showing individuals performing sex acts on one another), we will not embed the video in this story.

If you do wish to see how truly horrific the content is, you can view Nomani’s video here.

The books don’t just show any kind of pornography, however.

*They appear to show drawings of child pornography by depicting acts of pedophilia.

One book even includes a “fourth-grade boy performing oral sex on an adult male,” Nomani reported.

In “Lawn Boy,” the author describes performing such an act for the first time at the age of 10.

This is the type of material a pedophile would use to groom his victims, making them read it as a way of normalizing explicit sex acts.

And the Fairfax County school district allegedly made these books available to “minors as young as seventh grade, or as young as 12 years old.”

The school board chair, Stella Pekarsky, attempted to defend the inclusion by claiming one of the schools they were found at was made up of “high school students.”

Either way, it likely doesn’t make parents feel much better knowing that their high school children may have been and possibly continue to be exposed to this horrific content.

For years, conservatives have been saying that the sexual-freedom-movement left’s ultimate goal is to sexualize children and they’ve been called crackpots for saying so.

Well, who are the crackpots now?

Modern-day leftists have taken over the public school system.

And, if you let them, they’ll use that power to sexualize America’s children with pedophile-esque grooming techniques.

I pondered whether to censor the images that Stacy Langton presented. I didn’t. The Fairfax County School Board saw these images from books that 12 year olds can check out at the school library and THEY RAN AWAY. The public must know their cowardice.
<https://t.co/OFh8gRtbD5>

— Asra Nomani (@AsraNomani) September 24, 2021

Ban pornographic books in school libraries

By

Stacy Langton

November 16, 2021 12:00 AM

Since my appearance at the Fairfax County Public Schools board meeting on Sept. 23, a national conversation has begun. I went that night after seeing two reports in early September about parents finding pornographic materials in their children's schools.

*I checked out two titles from my son's library at Fairfax High School. What I found was more shocking than I could have ever imagined: The two books, Gender Queer: A Memoir by Maia Kobabe and Lawn Boy by Jonathan Evison, contain explicit descriptions and illustrations of X-rated pornographic sex and, even worse, pedophilia.

The books were not only in Fairfax High School but many other high schools within FCPS, including Robinson Secondary School, which is a combined middle school. So these books describing pedophilic acts were accessible to children as young as 12.

The Gender Queer book was actually found on the shelf in the comic book section, next to titles such as The Black Panther, The Avengers, Superman, etc.

*I considered it my duty as a parent to go to the school board meeting to alert other parents. I had no idea up to that point, and I'm assuming most other parents didn't, either. I was also going to my school board to seek accountability for this issue. I wanted to know how this had happened in the first place. Who placed such pornographic books in our school libraries? What entity supplies these books? Who approves them? The FCPS board? The librarians? Unfortunately, I have yet to receive answers to any of these questions.

At the meeting, the board chairwoman, Stella Pekarsky, interrupted my presentation at the 90-second mark — before my allotted two minutes were up. She said, “There are children in the room, ma’am!” Exactly, Stella, and thank you for pointing out that you do not want children seeing or hearing pornography, which is precisely why it should not be in our school libraries.

After an outburst from another board member, Melanie Meren, the audience shouted in protest. Pekarsky cut my mic and cut the camera feed. I did not get to finish. The board then fled the stage and took an 18-minute recess.

My presentation became a national news story. I have received broad support from parents everywhere who are now awake to the nationwide problem in our schools. Angry parents are demanding accountability in their school districts, and some are even getting that accountability.

The most vicious attacks made against me, however, come directly from the LGBTQ community.

Pornography and pedophilia in schools should not be a political issue. It is offensive to the common decency of all people. Nobody should be in favor of accessibility to pornography in our schools by minors. This is not about the gender identity or sexual orientation of the characters depicted in the books. I’d have said all the same things had it been heterosexual.

I am not anti-gay. In fact, I am the adult child of a gay parent. That’s right: My mother, Gail, was a lesbian. I was raised around gay women from the time I was 9 years old. I’m familiar with the discrimination that comes with being a member of the LGBTQ community, such as walking into my physics class in high school to find the words “Your Mom is a Dyke” carved into my desk.

My mother would be horrified at the things that have been said about me by her community since the school board meeting and the threats that have been made against my family and her six beloved grandchildren.

Who is in favor of pornography and pedophilia in schools? Please do not defend the indefensible. That cannot be the goal of any worthwhile cause. Let’s work together to end this sick, and actually illegal, pornography in our nation’s schools.

It is not about Right or Left. It is about right or wrong.

.....

Orlando, Florida

The movement to remove ‘pornographic’ books from school libraries, explained

By Nick Papantonis, WFTV.com

November 23, 2021 at 3:15 pm ES

Alicia Farrant never thought she'd be fighting to remove books from her local school system.

The Orlando mother of five calls herself a book lover. She believes they impart valuable lessons to children and teens. School district matters and board meetings weren't even on her radar.

Then, she came across a list of books passed on by a friend that were described as sexually explicit, even pornographic, and commonly found in schools.

She checked them out from a library.

“There's not just one or two pages. The vast majority of these, it's like tons of inappropriate content,” she said, pointing to a book sitting next to her. “The entire storyline is just about a girl losing her virginity — sexual acts.”

The rush to remove

“Book challenging really follows whatever is causing anxiety in society,” Dr. Emily Knox, a researcher and professor at the University of Illinois Urbana-Champaign, said.

Due to the shifting conversations around race and sexual identity, Knox said she was not surprised that parents were challenging an increased number of titles from their district libraries, though she was careful to separate the two into different movements.

The movement that Farrant became an advocate for was centered around sex and sexual identity. Some advocates have pushed for removing any novel that discusses subjects certain groups view as taboo. In past years this was divorce. More recently, targets include gay relationships or marriage and transgender children.

Farrant does not consider herself that extreme, even if she does not personally agree with the content of those books. Her view, and the opinions of other Central Florida parents, is based on sex alone, that anything that wouldn't be OK for students to discuss loudly in the hallways shouldn't be found on library shelves.

Some books, like “Tricks,” the novel she considers the most offensive still on the shelves and the one she pointed to earlier, are full of descriptions of sexual acts and rape. Other books, like “Born a Crime” by Trevor Noah, she takes issue with only because it can be found in middle schools, not just high schools.

“Tricks” was given an age rating of 14 to 18 years, while “Born a Crime” is rated appropriate for children 11+.

Debate surges

The first signs that the movement was coming to Central Florida happened at an Orange County School Board meeting in October.

*As parents packed into the room to discuss masking, one man stood up and complained about the novel “Gender Queer.” He read a passage from the book. Board Chairwoman Teresa Jacobs asked him to stop.

When he kept going, she asked an officer to escort him from the room, telling the audience that she believed it was too inappropriate for a publicly broadcast meeting as well as the library shelves.

“Anything that is sexually explicit, sexually arousing, anything of that sort ... we don’t need that,” she said. “There are thousands of books out there that do not contain this kind of material.”

.....

Manhattan, New York

Parents Mortified to Find Out Elite Prep School Subjected Kids to a ‘Pornography Literacy’ Class

By Isa Cox May 24, 2021 at 4:58pm

Parents at an elite Manhattan prep school are irate after discovering that their children were presented with a shockingly graphic and detailed seminar on “pornographic literacy.” And yes, this is what it was actually called. Although educator Justine Ang Fonte is the Health & Wellness director at the elite Dalton School in Manhattan’s Upper East Side, parents at Columbia Grammar & Preparatory School were unprepared for — and indeed, not even warned about — the explicit presentation she recently gave to 120 teenagers called “Pornography Literacy: An intersectional focus on mainstream porn,” the New York Post reports.

Advertisement – story continues below

The workshop, it appears, is exactly what it sounds like: a lecture on sex and pornography from the perspective of intersectionality, an ideology well within the realm of critical theory, the philosophy that views the world entirely along the lines of oppression and complex, elusive hierarchies of victimhood.

Indeed, a photograph from Fonte’s website celebrating the start of her “11th year disrupting health education” indicates quite plainly that her mode of teaching youngsters about “health and wellness” has everything to do with this radical, Marxist-based ideology.

Fonte doesn’t appear to mind how much she traumatizes students with highly adult concepts and images in the process.

While the Post noted that the concept of “pornography literacy” appears to have originally been aimed at countering the dangers of being exposed to pornography as one's primary means of sexual education, the incredibly graphic nature of her seminar seems to totally contradict this intention.

Advertisement – story continues below

Fonte's lesson for the Columbia students addressed porn and the "three big male vulnerabilities," so-called "orgasm gap" statistics that professed to accurately portray the rate at which straight women have orgasms as compared to gay men and women and straight men the most commonly searched for porn terms of 2019 and a handy guide to various porn genres such as "incest-themed," consensual or "vanilla," "barely legal," and "kink and BDSM," for which the latter "waterboard electro" was given as an example.

Why, exactly, does a teenager need a crash-course in the darkest depths of pornographic culture in order to learn not to view pornography as sexual education, exactly?

Would you be upset if your child's school offered this lecture?

One part of the lecture also included an informative quote from an Only Fans star — i.e. a person who sells pornographic images of herself to strangers on the internet for very quick and easy cash — who laments she must describe herself as a "girl" in spite of her own gender identity.

"I identify as non-binary," the young woman was quoted as saying, "but because that hasn't hit the general consciousness of the adult industry, I say 'girl,' because that's what people who want to buy my content will be looking for."

Apparently, it is super important for teenagers to understand the culturally unenlightened proclivities of the modern American pornography consumer are yet another indication of bias against the non-gender-conforming ... because "health education.

"We were all like, 'What?'" one student told The Post.

"Everyone was texting each other, 'What the hell is this? It's so stupid.' Everyone knows about porn. The worst part of it was that it took place not long before the AP tests and I had to miss both my AP classes for this.”

OK, when a teenager knows it's stupid that you're trying to teach underage kids about the rate at which various demographics of adults have orgasms or what sick fetishes Americans largely have because they would rather do their AP courses, you know you've gotten way off base.

*Now I know this sounds crazy, but adults with even the slightest idea of what constitutes decent, appropriate behavior should do their best to ensure that those lucky modern teens who haven't yet been exposed to the internet's broad range of base sexual filth definitely do not need to know about American proclivities for incest or torture porn.

This irritated and studious AP student wasn't the only one who was disgruntled. Many of her peers viewed the lecture at home via Zoom, the Post notes, which is how so many parents became apprised of the graphic content contained within. Others were made to watch the lecture on their laptops at school.

“We were supposed to answer questions about the porn stuff in the Zoom chat but we were all side-chatting in group chats and tons of kids thought it was so dumb that they sent the link to their friends all over the city and they were all logging on with the password,” another student said.

Oh, please let this next generation be galvanized by the sheer idiocy of the adults currently indoctrinating them with this garbage, because boy, I can't really see our society lasting much longer if they don't start learning to push back against this depravity and nonsense soon.

*Of course, for the parents of future generations struggling to give their kids a halfway decent education without subjecting them to radical, hyper-ideological indoctrination, it can be difficult to stand up to the woke crowd.

“No one wants to be cancelled or lose their livelihood and that can be done in an instant,” one mother who spoke to the Post on the condition of anonymity explained. “Most parents feel the same way I do about not going public but at the same time we're incredibly frustrated by what's going on. None of the parents knew this was planned. We were completely left in the dark. It makes us wonder what else the school is up to.”

The Post also spoke with three other parents who requested the school show them the content from the presentation after it had taken place but were “rebuffed.”

One mother secured a Zoom meeting with administrations, which “went nowhere,” she said. “The sophistry was incredible.”

A spokesperson from the Foundation Against Intolerance and Racism who spoke with The Post explained that “This is all part of an orthodoxy that has taken over schools across the country.”

“Millions of kids are being experimented on with a new curriculum that racializes and sexualizes young children, labels them by traits like skin color, gender or sexual orientation, and tells them the paths of their lives are determined by those traits.”

Parents are growing concerned that Columbia may end up like the rest of Manhattan prep schools who have embraced intersectional ideology and as it had remained one of the last prep schools in the city “not to have gone down the radicalized rabbit hole,” as one parent put it.

Now, the school is set to hire a DEI — a director of diversity, equity and inclusion.

Last week, fed-up Columbia parents launched the Instagram account @SpeakUpCGPS.

“An ideology masquerading as ‘social justice’ threatens to destroy our school. Speak up!” the account’s bio reads. One post reassures fellow parents “We won’t be offended if you don’t follow us. We understand,” offering an email for any stories that will be kept completely confidential.

The account also shared a number of slides from the explicit presentation.

The school, for its part, admitted fault, to a degree.

Shortly after the Post published their story on the pornography class, the head of school for Columbia, Dr. William M. Donohue, sent an email to parents professing, “It was unfortunate that we did not better inform ourselves of the speaker’s specific content in advance. In this case, the speaker did not align with our unique CGPS mission and for this, I apologize ... Going forward we will certainly learn from this experience.”

*Like so much of the problematic radical ideology that has been permeating our academic institutions and corporate culture, this type of “health education” seems more likely to exacerbate any problems in society it is attempting to solve.

Pornography cheapens sex and certainly shows some of the basest aspects of human nature, and there is absolutely no need whatsoever to expose teenagers — or anyone else you think should have a healthy view of sex for that matter — to explicit, graphic sexual terminology, images or attitudes on sex to address any issues with pornography.

This truly is not about “health,” it’s about the radical “disruption”the critical theorists are threatening to cause within the very fabric of our society, including the incredibly important sexual norms that at one time kept children much safer from irresponsible behavior and families more unified in their intention to reserve sex for the confines of traditional marriage.*

We’ve got to ask American parents this until we’re blue in the face — do you know what is being taught at your child’s school?Because we really can’t even be sure anymore how far they’re going to go with this stuff.*

Now Read the Media Response.

The keywords are , Book banning, Free Speech, Health Education

Are they not promoting the sexualization of children and pedophilia?

The screenshot shows the top of The Guardian's website. At the top right, there are links for 'Print subscriptions', 'Sign in', 'Search jobs', 'Search', and 'US edition'. Below this is a dark blue banner with the text 'Support the Guardian' in yellow, followed by 'Fearless, independent, reader-funded' in white. A yellow button with 'Support us' and a right arrow is on the left. On the right side of the banner is the 'The Guardian' logo in white. Below the banner is a navigation bar with links for 'News', 'Opinion', 'Sport', 'Culture', 'Lifestyle', and 'More'.

How to beat a book ban: students, parents and librarians fight back

As rightwing campaigns for censorship sweep the US, opponents are finding ways to keep books on the shelves.

The censorship of books in the US has reached crisis level.

More than 2,500 different book bans were enacted in schools across 32 US states during the 2021-2022 school year, according to a new report by Pen America. And attempts to ban books from libraries are on track to exceed 2021's already record-setting figures, the American Library Association said on Friday.

But still, there is cause for hope.

*Across the country, parents, students, teachers, librarians and community groups have successfully fought back against attempted bans, defeating well-funded, rightwing attempts to remove books that address issues of race, sexuality and gender.

A Frenzy of Book Banning

Virginia's Spotsylvania County School Board this week voted unanimously to have books with "sexually explicit" material removed from school library shelves.

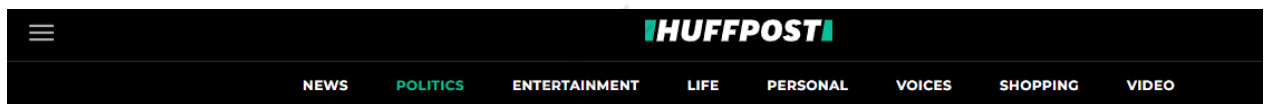

This was just one example of an aggressive new censoriousness tearing through America, as the campaign against critical race theory expands into a broader push to purge school libraries of books that affront conservative sensibilities regarding race and gender.

With the rush to ban critical race theory, conservatives already gave up posturing as defenders of free speech. Still, this sudden mania for book banning is striking. It's part of a broader attack on public schools, one that draws on anger over critical race theory, mask mandates and sometimes even QAnon-inflected fears about pedophile conspiracies.

This spreading moral panic demonstrates, yet again, why the left needs the First Amendment, even if the veneration of free speech has fallen out fashion among some progressives.

"What we're seeing is really this idea that marginalized communities, marginalized groups, don't have a place in public school libraries, or public libraries, and that libraries should be institutions that only serve the needs of a certain group of people in the community," said Caldwell-Stone.

Country Star Compares Teachers To Pedophiles In Speech Backing Tennessee Book Ban

A legislative push in Tennessee to ban "obscene" books from schools resulted in a surreal hearing on Wednesday, with country music star John Rich arguing that librarians and teachers pose a greater threat to children than actual pedophiles.

The measure in question, HB 1944, would prohibit public and charter schools from "making obscene materials or materials harmful to minors" available to students. Notably, the bill does not define what would qualify as "obscene."

How a Harmless Teacher Got Branded a 'Pedophile' by Extremists

"The worst parts of this are at the beginning."

That's what Laney Dicksion mumbled as she angrily flipped through Gender Queer—a graphic memoir about exploring gender identity and sexuality—for a local Oklahoma TV broadcast last month.

The teacher in question Summer Boismier provided students with a QR code leading *them to UnBanned—a Brooklyn Public Library program offering teenagers unlimited digital and audio access to banned or challenged books—on the first day of school last month.

Boismier resigned just days after dishing out the QR code. In so doing, she styled herself a defiant champion of free thought in Oklahoma, a state that last year enacted a law—HB 1775—targeting so-called critical race theory. The right-wing bete noire is effectively nonexistent in the classes taught to young American kids, even as rage about it has fed a larger cultural panic over education nationwide.

So, the new heroism is to provide children with banned explicit material and resign.

What do you think about it?

The Gay Agenda Blueprint: A Plan to Transform America- By Beyond Today

Author's note at the end of each post: -"Your biggest problem is so small for such a big God"-Ella Cruz" The Bible serves as the blueprint of faith, and the New Testament provides us with God's faith and the power to perform miracles through faith and the name of Jesus. Regardless of the severity of cancer, healing can be achieved through faith in God's word. When Jesus raised the dead, he did not discriminate based on the level of death. He simply called forth life. Let's explore how he did it. The first time Jesus brought someone back from the dead was the daughter of Jairus, an official in Jerusalem. Although she had passed away, she was only recently deceased. The second time was the son of a widow in Nain who had been dead for just one day. Lastly, Jesus raised Lazarus, the brother of Mary and Martha in Bethany, who had been dead for three days. He raised them all. No matter how insurmountable your problem may seem, Jesus is the resurrection and the light. Ella Cruz World's events are happening so fast. Global Governance 2015, Agenda 2030, Agenda 2050, Antarctica, Mars, CERN, G5, The United Nations, The European Union, the Club of Rome, and the false prophets of the Vatican all together, we see that the satanic global government is imminent, and it shall come to pass. The mark of the beast will be obligatory. You are either a Christian or not. If you are, you believe this because it is predicted 2000 years ago in the Bible. But if you are not a Christian, you read the news and notice that the satanic world government is their agenda. Their Global Governance 2025 is terribly close. Their Green New Deal 12-year timeline matches the agenda 2030. We have a short time to prepare ourselves. Born-again Christians are happy and calm. Why? Why do we joyfully dedicate ourselves to the nation, knowing that we will be chased and prosecuted? Because we are dedicated to the Kingdom. "Thy kingdom come; Thy will be done." 1. We firmly believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of the Living God. 2. We hold the Bible as the divinely inspired Word of God. 3. We believe that God loved us so much that He sent His only begotten Son to die on the cross for our sins. Through His precious blood, all our sins are washed away and forgiven. 4. We believe that the price for our salvation, health, prosperity, happiness, and eternal life has been paid by the blood of Jesus. These gifts are freely available to us through the grace of God. By His stripes, we were healed 2000 years ago. 5. We acknowledge that by accepting Jesus Christ as our Lord and Savior, we open our hearts to the Holy Spirit. We are baptized by the Holy Spirit, who dwells within us and communicates with us through dreams, visions, speeches, videos, books, and other means. This communication begins immediately after our salvation. 6. We firmly believe that Jesus Christ remains the same yesterday, today, and forever. As born-again believers, we receive the same DNA as Jesus Christ, with the same miraculous abilities through faith. Just as the apostles performed signs and wonders like Jesus, we too can accomplish these miracles through faith, and the Lord will work through us. 7. We condemn the Vatican's religion and many false prophets who have deceived Christians for centuries, hiding the true message of the Bible and the Good News from people to maintain their power. We welcome all denominations and strive for unity in the body of Christ. 8. We believe that a born-again Christian never truly dies. When a believer's life on earth ends, they are promoted to heaven, and death holds no power over them. In heaven, we experience immense joy, love, peace, and the glory of God. Those who have had near-death experiences or have seen Jesus in a vision or dream know the indescribable relief and joy of being in His presence. To answer the question of why we are happy, we say that we could happily die at any moment. In fact, we long to go home and be with our Lord. However, we know that each one of us has a mission and purpose revealed to us by the Holy Spirit after our born-again experience. For the sake of fulfilling that mission, we remain joyful and relaxed in the spirit, knowing that we are called to save people by preaching the Gospel and bringing them to Jesus. To be born again, you just need to say: Lord Jesus, I accept you as my personal savior, Come to my heart, Forgive my sins, Wash me away, Make me a new person, And live inside of me. In the Name of Jesus from Nazareth, Amen. And that's it. You are saved! Jesus will reveal Himself to you, and your life will undergo a significant transformation. Your marriage, health (especially addiction), finances, and all areas of your life will experience an extraordinary change. And never look back. In Jesus Almighty name. Amen.

Date: 05-04-2023